It seems like it's gotten much cooler.
All the bushes have a quiet air about them.
And the leaves on this gourd feel chilly.
Huh?
I can't seem to remember how hot it was just the other day.
That's odd.
All these trumpet creepers are still blooming, and glowing like the sun...
And yet where has the summer gone?
It's almost like it was all just a dream...